

On The Evolution of Flowers is a structured improvisation scored for my instruments, marimba, and hand percussion. It has three sections queued by specific musical events and can last between 10-20 minutes. The opening is unmeasured, the middle is in a quick 7/8, and the final section is again unmeasured. The piece ends when the hand percussionist throws a clay flower pot into a trash can.